Thank you for considering me as your clinical supervisor. This professional disclosure statement is designed to acquaint you with my qualifications as a supervisor, to provide an overview of the supervision process, and to inform you of a number of administrative details.

I hold a master's degree in clinical social work from Arizona State University (1984). My professional biography is available at: http://www.psychod.com/?page_id=165. I am licensed in Arizona as a Licensed Clinical Social Worker (No. 0011), in a private practice.

I am certified as an approved clinical supervisor by the National Board of Certified Counselors (NCC), and am on the Arizona supervisory registry. I am trained to offer "licensure-quality clinical supervision" (see: http://www.psychod.com/licquality.pdf), modeled after Arizona state laws regarding supervision that qualifies for state licensure of professional counselors, social workers, marriage and family and substance abuse counselors.

My training in clinical supervision includes being supervised myself, creating coursework, and teaching workshops since 2004. The method of clinical supervision employed is: http://psychod.com/ClinSupvPres.pdf. My business has received Sponsorship Status as a provider of continuing education from the American Psychological Association.

I have been a clinical supervisor since 1979 and have held a variety of such positions in public agencies and private practice. I have published on the topic (see: http://www.psychod.com/laing2006.pdf) and attend a bi-monthly clinical consultation group since 1982.

The supervision portion of my practice includes individuals, groups, and the training of clinical supervisors. I work with mental health professionals who treat adolescents and adults, and have received training in gestalt therapy, gestalt family therapy, bioenergetic analysis, ego psychology, short-term psychotherapy, cognitive-behavioral therapy, psychodynamic psychotherapy and transpersonal psychotherapy.

I established myself as a generalist in mental health, working with a wide variety of mental disorders in individuals, couples, and specifically men's groups. My areas of competence in psychotherapy include the treatment of depression, anxiety, substance abuse, and personality disorders. I am also a student of transpersonal psychology and have taught university-level coursework on that topic: http://www.psychod.com/?page id=8.

Clinical supervision is a process whereby one person is designated to facilitate the professional development and therapeutic competence of another person or persons. I have chosen to conduct my supervision using a model that employs three roles: teacher, psychotherapist, and consultant. Most often I use the teacher and consultant roles. The psychotherapist role is used at those times when the supervisee's thoughts or feelings or behaviors are stimulated by the client and interfere with the efficacious treatment effort. Any comments, however, will be limited to specific case-related issues as ethically I cannot provide therapy for you as part of our effort.

In addition to these roles, I will assist you to focus on the following skill and knowledge areas: therapeutic processes, personal and interpersonal awareness, conceptualizing treatment, professional identity, and administrative skills. The process skills comprise psychotherapy techniques and other essential aspects of the interview with a client. Awareness skills refer the effort to be mindful of those aspects of your experience that arise in you while being a therapist, and the impact of these between you and your client. Conceptualizing focuses on how you think, write, plan and analyze your cases. The administrative functions include treatment planning, case files, etc.

Evaluation is an important and integral part of the supervision process. Evaluation involves making judgments and providing feedback about the strengths in your work, the need for improvement, and the observation of therapeutic boundaries. My feedback will be ongoing, emphasizing evidence, process and progress. At least once a year there will a formal, planned evaluation. This evaluation will be based on your goals and other mutually agreed upon criteria.

I will provide you with the best supervision I can muster. Our relationship will be professional in nature and built upon mutual respect and trust. My supervision will be consistent with the ethical standards set forth by the National Association of Social Workers and the Arizona Board of Behavioral Health Examiners. Although the focus of supervision will be on you and your professional development as a psychotherapist, the primary concern will be client care. I am unable to guarantee any specific results regarding your learning goals, but agree to work with you to achieve the best possible results.

I will keep a record of our sessions together in a format that the State law demands. These records will be available to you to view at any time, and I will maintain them for seven years. I suggest that you also maintain your own records. As a supervisee, you are in control of the relationship and may end the supervision at any time, and I will be supportive of your decision.

If you are submitting these hours of clinical supervision for your professional license, you are responsible to keep track of the number of hours, how many you need of individual or group, the qualifications of your supervisors, etc. Be certain that I can document every hour of supervision that you submit. I too have to submit to the Board (in my annual continuing education report) the number of hours that you complete.

You may request that I provide information to others, and I will do so after you have signed a release statement. If you have been mandated into clinical supervision by a licensing board action, you and I will discuss that board's reporting requirements and will comply in a way that protects your client's confidentiality.
